CONGRESSIONAL RECORD - SENATE

March 10, 1966

THE REORGANIZED CIA

Mr. YOUNG of North Dakota. President, the Central Intelligence Agency is undoubtedly the most misrepresented and maligned Agency of our Government.

This is understandable because they are in the business of gathering intelligence from all over the world. They are always vulnerable to attack because it has long been the policy of the CIA-and I think rightfully so—not to attempt to defend itself no matter what charges are leveled against them.

Mr. President, I was pleased to read a column in the Washington Post this morning, March 10, by a noted columnist. William S. White, entitled "Reorganized CIA-Making Use of Outside Skills.'

From my knowledge of the CIA and their operations—and it is considerable— I believe this article to be an accurate Record as a part of my remarks.

There being no objection, the article covering for some operations.

Within the limits of bedrock and unalterable scourity precautions, however, Adia. W. F. Raborn, its Director, has reorganized its whole inner structure and approach to make a wide use of outside skills and talents—and information—never before so widely available to CIA.

The production of scientific and technical intelligence, in consequence, has been inmensely increased. This has been principally through the cooperation of worldfamous American mon of science who have been brought in as cleared consultants. Some American industrial concerns have made large direct contributions of their own. That Raborn, a professional admiral yet, has become the chief of the CIA in order to jiquidate some of its old passion for extreme apartners is not without its irony. When he took over the Agency there was much expressed fear that with a military mind at it. head it would more and more tend to operate

In truth he has gone to the reverce. CIA was never so little a one-man operation as it is now. The admiral has given to the professional operative who is his deputy. Eichard Helms, a degree of power never before held. fore held by any man other than the Director

Helms, in truth, actually conducts the dayby-day operations of the Agency. He sits as the CIA representative on the U.S. combined Intelligence Board. He, as well as Raborn, briefs Members of Congress. The admiral, in short, cheerfully acknowledges Helms' superior savvy as a career intelligence operative. Raborn's simple purpose has been to merce and fair appraisal of the CIA and I wish to associate myself with the comments of Mr. White and especially with reference to its Director, Admiral Raborn.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have this article inserted in the ranks. But the best information available rooms and fair appraisal of the CIA and I wish the intelligence expertise of Richard Helms. The intelligence community is a small and at heart a closed community and the introduction into CIA of a scadog outsider undoubtedly did not sit well at first within the sent to have this article inserted in the now is that professional morale is high and not low. This, at any rate, is the estimate of men not involved in the agency but with

CIA—Making Use of Outside Skills

(By William S. White)

The highly secret Central Intelligence Agency is broadening its communication or to the professional crew.

Almost, indeed, it might be said that CIA is for the first time ginger!

Agency is broadening its communication with Congress, with private American seightlists, and with American industry.

Almost, indeed, it might be said that CIA is for the first time gingerly entering ordinary American life—or as much of that ordinary life as its unavoidably clandestine basic cast can possibly permit.

This, the most sensitive of the instrumentalities of the American Government in the cold war has not, of course, dropped and cannot drop its inherent cloak-and-durer covering for some operations.

These special reew.

One other fact is perhaps worth noting:
Not once in Raborn's regime has CIA been caught napping in any major outbreak of couble for us around the world.

One other fact is perhaps worth noting:
Not once in Raborn's regime has CIA been caught napping in any major outbreak of couble for us around the world.

One other fact is perhaps worth noting:
Not once in Raborn's regime has CIA been caught napping in any major outbreak of couble for us around the world.

One other fact is perhaps worth noting:
Not once in Raborn's regime has CIA been caught napping in any major outbreak of couble for us around the world.

One other fact is perhaps worth noting:
Not once in Raborn's regime has CIA been caught napping in any major outbreak of couble for us around the world.

One other fact is perhaps worth noting:
Not once in Raborn's regime has CIA been caught napping in any major outbreak of couble for us around the world.

One other fact is perhaps worth noting:
Not once in Raborn's regime has CIA been caught napping in any major outbreak of couble for us around the world.

One of his creations, a new form of special intelligence task force for special needs, involving senior operations officers from all arms of American intelligence, is on 24-hour watch in every critical area of the earth. The busiest at the moment is Task Force Vietnamiant.

This, the most caught napping in any major outbreak of the caught napping in any major outbreak of the caught napping in any major outbreak of the caught n

These special forces serve with far more These special forces serve with far more coldly objective minds—as does the CIA collectively—than is commonly thought by eager critics. Still, nobody is naive enough to suppose that the best possible work will cotally free CIA of the instinctive skepticism and cometimes outright hostility of a public which has a healthy suspicion of secret establishments and an immense appetite for melodramatic cpy faction.

One of Raborn's central efforts is to reduce

One of Raborn's central efforts is to reduce this skepticism, this hostility, by what in CIA linguage would be called the optimum possible.

Approved For Release 2005/11/21: CIA-RDP71B00364R000600160016-8